Jaycees to Give Schools a Speech Therapy Machine

A valuable speech therapy machine, financed by Bowling Sweepstakes, has been purchased by Granite City Jaycees for the Granite City school district. It was announced today by Paul Worthen, president, and Monte Worthen, community development chairman.

The auditory trainer to be used by the special education department will be presented to Supt. Russell D. Johnson during the Jaycee Week banquet, Thursday night.

Harold Thomas, special education director, reports the machine is precisely calibrated by an audiometer and contains multiple accessories. It is the first of its kind obtained here, and the district hopes to acquire others later.

Principal use will be to enable hard-of-hearing students to hear themselves and their teacher as they strive to perfect their speech. Even when hearing loss varies in the two ears, the machine can be set to bring each up to normal during speech instruction, Thomas explained.

The same size of the costly sound-and-half machine will enable it to be transported for use at various schools.

Nameki Twp. Sewer Plan Being Revised

The "Nameki town board is to review its proposed $1,925,000 sewer project, revised to eliminate the village of Pontoon Beach, at this evening's 7 o'clock meeting at the town hall along Route 162.

Harry Briggs, supervisor, said it was impossible for an advance publication of the bond ordinance, as was planned for today's issue of the Press-Record. "We hope to publish it as quickly as possible in the event residents of the township want to petition for a referendum. If an election is requested, it would be best to hold it with the regular township election on April 6," Briggs added.

The village of Pontoon Beach is not expected to decide on participation in the sewer system until Jan. 28 meeting. The village is included in the largest portion of the sewer project construction phases which consists of Miracle Manor, the Bellefonte area and the village as originally planned.

The largest phase, with the village, has been estimated to cost $1,263,200. The other two sections are East Madison-Cloverleaf, $226,395, and State Park Place, $237,000.

Council May Try to Override Mayor's Veto on Rebid Plan

An attempt to override the mayor's Jan. 6 veto of a council resolution to seek new bids from two manufacturers of sewage treatment plant filters is expected at tonight's 8 o'clock session of the Granite City council.

The resolution, proposed by the Special Pollution Abatement committee on a recommendation by local industrial engineers, set the bid opening for this evening on revised specifications to give longer life to the machines.

Alderman Charles Moerlein said an effort is being made to muster 12 votes to override the veto. The resolution was adopted Jan. 4 by a vote of 9 to 6, and the alderman who was absent, Walter Nunn, has agreed to support the committee's recommendation in the past.

Detour to be Approved

Council approval of a detour route for southbound traffic on Madison avenue between 16th and 18th streets is anticipated. Approval was indicated at the special session last week. The detour will permit traffic on City Street to relocate a city sewer off its property to the middle of Madison avenue and at the same time remove abandoned trolley tracks. The sewer relocation is needed because of the mill's $100,000 expansion and modernization program.

Namooki road widening between Madison avenue and the north city limits also may be a topic tonight. It was the subject of last week's special meeting, and the council plans to name a citizen committee to give assistance in speeding up the project. A meeting with state highway officials, including the new district engineer, Robert Krom, is to be scheduled for later this week.

The council also has yet to take up proposed increases in the salaries of elected officials whose terms expire in April. Adjustments cannot be made during the session.

$63,904 in Fines Goes To County During '64

Madison county received a total of $63,904 from fines and fees assessed by magistrates in the county during 1964, it was reported by John L. Kraynak, county auditor.

The total is an increase over $55,508 collected in 1963 and $42,676 in 1962. Last year was the first under the new judicial system, the auditor noted, and a few of the magistrates "were considerably active."

He predicted that the county fines will show a major increase this year. The money goes to the state's attorney's account, and the state's attorney gears his operations and budget on the amount received from fines. Kraynak said $60,000 in fines was anticipated, and expenditures by the state's attorney's office totaled $56,002.

A photograph showing the transfer of 631 tons of drainage culverts manufactured by Young & Greenwald of Granite City from a Federal Barge lines vessel to a freighter, destined for East Africa is published this month in the New Orleans Port Record, a quarterly publication of shipping news.

The photograph was taken at the New Orleans Port's Nashville avenue wharf where the corrugated drainage pipe sections were being put aboard the SS Margaret Lykes for consignment to the government of Tanganyika.

The shipment, which went down the Mississippi from Granite City via the Federal Barge Lines, was shipped through the Tri-City Regional Port according to Cmdr. John Barron, port manager. Young & Greenwald have been producing corrugated drainage pipe in Granite City since last August and have shipped several orders to Tanganyika where the pipe is being used in an irrigation project.

Meanwhile, National Marine Service has placed in use the large liquid storage tanks constructed recently at the Tri-City Port, with both incoming and outgoing shipments on a regular schedule. Wage-Earning Students May Get Tax Benefits
Many students who earn part of their expenses will find they have received a special benefit under the Revenue Act of 1964, Springfield district director of Internal Revenue, Jay G. Philpott, said today.

The new provision allows a minimum standard deduction of $200 plus $100 for each exemption. Thus, married couples filing joint returns are entitled to $400 minimum deduction, plus another $100 for each personal exemption.

An unmarried student may earn $900 in 1964 without owing any Federal income tax—the usual $600 personal exemption plus a $300 minimum standard deduction.

However, a tax return must be filed if earnings are $600 or more, and a return should be filed in any event if the student is entitled to a refund of taxes withheld from his wages by his employer.

Philpott said some high school and college students misunderstand their Federal tax obligations. Many think they are exempt from income tax as students.

Mrs. Paul Danco, cheer chairman, reported on the sick and shut-ins and business was completed with the assignment of duties for the month, and the March benediction.

The annual congregational and corporation meeting of the church is to be held Wednesday evening. There will be a family gathering and pot luck supper at 6:30, followed by the business meeting at 7:30. Seven members are to be elected for each organization of the elders, deacons, deaconesses and trustees. Dr. Maxton will be moderator. The 28 officers elected are to be installed Sunday morning, Jan. 24. Sitters will be provided for both occasions.

Five Other Officers Re-elected for Bank
The names of five officers re-elected last week during a meeting of the board of directors of the Granite City Trust & Savings Bank were inadvertently omitted in an article in Thursday's issue.

They are Allen Jessee, vice president; John J. Polson, assistant vice-president; Anthony J. Zedolik, assistant vice-president; Jerry W. McPherson, assistant cashier; and Paul W. Niles, assistant cashier.

PTAs Being Asked to Support Move for More State Aid

Local Parent-Teacher organizations will be asked this month to support proposals for additional state aid for educational purposes in order to relieve local taxing pressures. It was announced today by Mrs. Mary Jessee, District 29 legislation chairman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.
In seeking additional state funds for local school districts, the state PTA organization joins forces with the Illinois Education Association and the Illinois Association of School Boards. Petitions requesting the general assembly to re-submit a state aid to education bill are being circulated locally as part of a state-wide effort by PTA members to secure one million signatures.
House Bill 1097, which authorized a $45 increase in flat grants per pupil, was passed by the 1963 state legislature but was vetoed by Gov. Otto Kerner. Currently, school districts are allowed $252 per student in equalization aid. Mrs. Jessee points out that the School Problems Commission, a state agency, reported a figure of $302 as the acceptable minimum amount for education per child. Proponents of the increase in state aid cite the financial status of Illinois which nationally ranks seventh in per capita personal income and fourth in per-capita retail sales. They compare state expenditure for education as ranking 44th on a national level and 49th in direct expenditures of state and local government for all education as percent of personal income. Mrs. Jessee added.

Determined Dog Leaps Through Window

A determined Boxer dog startled Mrs. Leonard Carter on Thursday afternoon when it jumped through a ground-level front dining room window to get to her dog, Spotty.
Mrs. Carter, who lives at 2828 W. 11th avenue, said the Boxer was unhurt, but her dog was showered with broken glass and is undergoing treatment at the local animal hospital for cuts to leg tendons and to her dog, Spotty.

When she heard the crash, Mrs. Carter grabbed a chair, and the Boxer fled through the broken window. She was able to locate its owner about 1 1/2 blocks away.

Car Turns Right, Slides

While making a right turn off of Nameid road onto 31st avenue, Fred G. Pfeiffer, 2418 Nameid road, told police he applied his brakes too hard and slid into the left rear of a car driven by Everett O. Lane, 1626 Lindell road, on Thursday. Both autos were damaged.

Soda Machine Attempt

An attempt was made to break into a soda machine at the Bell and Segeby service station, Edwards street and Washington avenue. It was reported at 5:45 a.m. Friday. Nothing was taken.

of Wilson Park and east of the railroad tracks.

"As far as the objects are concerned, I think this matter can be resolved rather quickly," Judge Moran said. "Twelve years ago or so when I built in the area, and later others built, we put a lot of our savings into our homes. We have raised our children there and we have made valuable additions to our property. It is a well-kept, secluded area and everyone keeps up his property to the best of his ability."

Must Consider Values

"When you consider rezoning, you must consider two things: first, how it affects the value of the property and, secondly, how it affects the character of the neighborhood."

"The residents have put a great deal of money in their homes, but once an apartment is established, it won't stop there. Once it is zoned for apartments, there will be more apartments than the neighborhood will change. Construction of these apartments would damage the resale value of my home and other homes, and we certainly don't want any 108 apartments in our neighborhood." As Judge Moran completed his discussion, G. H. Sternberg, Granite City alderman and a candidate for mayor who had been sitting near the commission table, told the members that he would violently oppose the rezoning if it ever came before the city council.

"Mr. Royce brought this plan to me to look over and I started looking around to see what would happen. I think the traffic along Michigan and Idaho avenues not only would be doubled, but it would be quadrupled. Naturally, apartments would bring additional children into the area and we would have a children traffic problem as well as auto traffic problem."

Claims Sewers a Problem

"And in a field in which I am not without some experience, I certainly can't visualize an easy way out of the stormwater problem. The city has not been able to provide adequate services for the area as it now is, and by putting this apartment in such an area, city services would be overtaxed more than they already are. I would have to say that if this matter comes before the city council, I will oppose it violently."

Sternberg's comment brought resounding applause from the audience which then was asked by Moran to clear the room while the commission members considered the issue.

To put the issue before the commission, Member Edwin Reiske, president of the Tri-City Trades and Labor Council, immediately moved that the petition for rezoning be rejected. Second to the motion was made by Clarence Allen, a railroad employee, but William Hoelscher, of the Manufacturers Association of the Tri-Cities, countered with a motion to table. No second to Hoelscher's motion was made. Reiske voiced immediate opposition to rezoning the site claiming that "these people, the developers, are trying to make money at the people's expense." He reminded commission members that Fisher told them sale of the property depended upon rezoning and pointed out that "no will be hurt by rejecting the petition."

Suggests Sewer Improvements

E. G. Schmitt, assistant vice-president of Illinois Power Co., suggested that perhaps the stormwater drainage problem in the area, one of the principal points of contention in development of the site, could be solved by improvements; but Sternberg, who is not a member of the commission, pointed out that "the sanitary sewer problem is not serious and might not be a problem at all, but the stormwater problem is a big one. The city doesn't have the money to upgrade the streets, handle the additional traffic and make the sewer improvements that would be necessary."

Commissioner William Brock of the Brooks Machine Works protested the petition on grounds that the sewer problem is an insurmountable one and that "this is a cold business proposition and nothing else."

The apartment might look fine at first, but they'll let them run down and deteriorate. They will not be kept up, and the line along which the residents in the area attacked this project," Brockus lives at 2800 Michigan avenue.

Proponents of the project pointed out that the development not only would provide a tax base on which a sizeable tax income would be paid to the city, but that it would also enhance the adjoining neighborhood because the apartments would become a buffer between the existing homes and the railroad tracks.

Need for Apartments

Alvin T. Barnes Jr., of the Associated Retailers and Civic Association, said he believed there "is a crying need for housing of this type." He said that in apartments of this type the families usually average about 2.5 persons. "I can't see how families of this type can damage the character of a neighborhood," Barnes said.

After several members had complained additional services would be needed, that additional children would tax school facilities and that sewers would be overloaded, Schmitt told the other members that "it is a matter of deciding whether we want to grow. If we are going to wait until all our schools are empty and no one is using our streets, and then go out and ask people to come into our community, that is when they are not going to come."

"The industries are growing. Our area is growing. If we get people in here and the community grows, naturally we are going to have school problems and traffic problems. If you are going to let a filling station, that is a business proposition, too."

Wanted to See Property

Hoelscher made several futile attempts to stave off a vote on the petition, asking for time to view the property involved so that he was better acquainted with the issue.

Henry Gabriel, architect, and a plan commissioner, maintained that "there are very few types of rental property kept up as well as self-owned property. This is a location that would go down faster than any other. I think the city would be taking a chance letting them build along the railroad tracks because the property would be more inclined to run down in such a location."

Reiske said that he is not in favor of rezoning any area in which the people are opposed to it. "I believe zoning was passed to protect the people, and so long as I am on this board I am for the people."

Barnes said he favored the apartment project because it was a better type of development than so many of the lower type housing units in individual structures that might be built in the area under the present zoning.

In a call for a vote, Morgan put the motion to a yes or no vote, but when opposition votes were announced he ordered a roll call vote. On the roll call, those voting yes, which meant rejection of the petition for rezoning, were Reiske, Allen, Barry Loman, Hoelscher, Gabriel and Brockus. Those voting no were Schmitt, Barnes and Henry Lueders.

A short time after the hearing, Avery Schermer said that the Carroll-Wood Development Co., which has offices in St. Louis, had withdrawn its offer to purchase the property. Sale of the site by the Schermers had been contingent upon rezoning. "We have no plans for any further action in connection with the project," Schermer said. "We were of the opinion, and still are, that this development would have been of benefit to Granite City not only from a standpoint of progress and tax income, but as an improvement to the area in which it was to be built."

Property, Report, Payments Occupy Venice Council

Passage of an ordinance calling for bids on a 15-foot stretch of city-owned property adjoining 620 Main street in Venice constituted the principal business of a brief meeting of the Venice city council Friday night. It followed a special meeting the previous night.

The ordinance is a legal procedure for selling the ground to Mrs. Anna Mae Godfrey, who in 1959 moved her house from 824 Main street to the 620 Main address to provide the city with a section of property it needed for the McKinley Bridge. Bids are to be received by Feb. 19, date of the council's second meeting of February.

The council also accepted the December report of the police department, showing 65 arrests during the month. These included 46 cases sent to the circuit court.

The city received $310 in fines and fees. Ten of the defendants were released without charges, one was jailed for non-payment of fine, one was bonded over to the grand jury, one was released to Granite City police, four were sent to the Vandalia penal farm and charges were withdrawn in two cases.

Payment of a claim in the amount of $676 to R. Dron Electric Co. was approved by the council, along with salary bills. Payment was made out of the McKinley Bridge replacement and improvement fund for work on a new trolley line at the bridge toll station.

Solve Occupation Mystery

Reports found to be circulated listed him in such differing vocations as an aeronautical engineer, journalist, military pilot and Canadian governmental envoy. It was therefore somewhat of a surprise to learn last that he instead had been employed at drug store and restaurant chains, including work as a bartender.

Kronstein's testimony is that he was living with his mother in La Grange in 1952, but had been divorced. Going to Chicago in November 1952, he resided in the city for a short time, but was a member of Local 658, Drug Store, Soda Fountain and Confectionery Employees.

He left Chicago some time in 1957, going to Los Angeles, Calif., for six months, before moving back to Granite City.

14 Jobs in Four Years

Social Security records disclose 14 jobs in Chicago during the 1953-56 period.

Kronstein earned $530 in the first quarter of 1953 and $2 in the second quarter as an employee of the Washington Trust Co. Next there were the Freshman M. Donnelly Corp., $4, and Big Four Advertising Carriers, $187.

Joining the Fidelity & Zeller restaurant chain, he drew $16 in the second quarter, $639 in the third quarter and $367 in the last quarter of 1953.

The next year brought employment with Carl Haeber and the George P. Mummert Association, $750 in January-March, $825 in April-June and $800 in July-September. In the October-December 1954 period, he worked for Harold Foster, $45, and the Macquis Co., $26.

The 1955 listing showed the Bright Market, $300 first quarter and $475 second quarter; and Hillman's, Inc., $132 third quarter and $852 fourth quarter, plus $309 in the first quarter of 1956.

Other 1956 work included the Ford Hopkins, $307; Wilford Slighton, $130; Stinebaugh Drug Co., $45; and Hardee Snacks, Inc., $58.

Financial Contrasts

The limited yearly income of $1878, $2247, $1840 and $2496 contrasts sharply with the wealth left by his grandfather in the form of the township site, other property and other holdings.

It also contrasts with the apparent finances of Kronstein since his return here, which coincided with sale of his interest in property adjacent to the Coolidge school grounds. In recent years, he has been seen driving rented autos of expensive makes on frequent occasions.

Terms of the estate established by the grandfather for Kronstein, his mother call for her to receive regular income from property and security retained in the trust. The two reside together at 2412 Madison avenue.

The will of the late Henry Fehling specifically prohibited sale of any of the holdings during her lifetime. However, the school district's power of eminent domain enabled it to condemn and acquire part of the land and establish a school campus. Through other arrangements with the trust and Kronstein, other property also has been put to use.

Payment $100,000

In effect, the $38,893 paid by the school district to the trust still exists within the trust and thus could be inherited by Kronstein along with all other assets of the trust which would be dissolved at the time of such inheritance. However, current court rulings being opposed by the district take the position that this fails to compensate Kronstein for inheritance.

The school itself, about 95% of which is on the former Fehling farm, represents an investment approaching $2 million, including subsequent additions. The law includes such improvements with the land on the theory that the construction took place at the school district's peril if it did not in fact own the property. It was indicated during the hearings that compensation will be sought only for the land, however.

Jury Would Set Amount

Containing 35 acres, much of it fronting on heavily-traveled streets, the tract could have a value far exceeding what was paid for it a dozen years ago. This would be decided by the jury if a new condemnation takes place.

The manner in which such an award would be divided between Kronstein and the trust also would need to be determined.

of last month is that "I am very pleased about it." While claiming only a "layman's knowledge" of the case, he gave indications of familiarity with various legal aspects.

Discussing the legal notice published at the time of the condemnation, he pointed out that "you don't find the Press-Record on the newsstand at State and Madison (Chicago)." Regardless, the notice that was published might have been termed sufficient had it included eight "magic words" necessary in actions affecting Illinois residents who cannot be contacted—"no that persons cannot be served upon him."

In acquiring a street from the same farm, the city was fortunate in that it did use the words "so that process cannot be served upon him." Speculation persists, though, over possible future developments once the school case has been resolved in one fashion or another.

How soon there will be a decision remains uncertain. The case could end quickly or could drag on for many more months.

New Evidence Reported

Much will depend on the extent of evidence or allegations that will be permitted. The school district reports that it has new evidence some of it relating to Kronstein. Whether any or all will be admissible depends upon whether judges view the case narrowly, as has been true in whether they consider its broader ramifications.

Unless judges change their

3-Car Nameless Crash

The northbound auto of Mrs. W. Stice, 3309 Village lane, collided on Nameoki road at Clark avenue at 7:55 p.m. Friday with the rear of the car of Jack Cochran, 2030 Washington avenue, who had stopped for traffic. The Stice auto then crossed the road and was hit by the southbound car of James Caudron, 8339 Palmer avenue, police were told.

approach, the school district may find that it has obtained only one thing for its $38,893, not to mention the $400 awarded to tenants of the farm.

All that has brought so far, the courts maintain, is the use of the land while the lifetime trust is in effect. This interpretation puts the school system a lot closer to the "high rent district" than it would care to be.

Facing Representation Problems

By Sen. Paul Simon

Unquestionably the most difficult matter which the Illinois legislature must tackle in the coming month is that of representation.

Both the House and Senate must be reconstituted, and there is a possibility the national House of Representatives districts may have to be changed also.

This is more difficult than tackling issues, because it involves personalities. In reality we have to vote districts which eliminate some of our colleagues and in some cases pit one against the other. This is never easy.

The questions I am asked most often concern the Senate. Let me try to answer some of these briefly.

Why did the Supreme Court rule that state senators must be according to population?

The federal constitution says that the citizen's vote shall in no way be diminished. It would be illegal, they argue, to say that Negroes shall have one-half a vote and white men one vote. It is equally unfair to give people in one county more of a vote and in another one less.

Doesn't this violate our tradition?

No. The large majority of states started with both houses based on population. We gradually grew away from this tradition. Illinois is one of the states which originally had both houses on a population basis. This was true in theory—until the 1854 vote on our state constitution. The federal constitution made an exception of this theory for the U. S. Senate.

Why then is Illinois growing out of this?

The fear in Illinois grows out of the Cook county vs. downstate feeling.

Cook county has 51% of the state's population. This could put Cook county in charge of both houses.

Unlike most states, Illinois has a patronage base for its politics and, through control of patronage, the head of the state of Cook county has considerable control of the vote by Cook county legislators, whether the party leader is a Democrat or a Republican.

There is always fear when a large group of voters is controlled.

Will Cook county control both houses?

I doubt it. In one of the Supreme Court's rulings they permitted one house of the Illinois legislature to be controlled by 45% of the population. The court felt this was reasonably close to the "one man, one vote" principle.

It would give a legislature voting a slight edge in one house to Cook county and a slight edge to the other in the other house. This would be constitutional.

How real is the Cook county domination?

Not as real as most people imagine. In more than 10 years in the legislature, I have never seen a vote which was divided strictly Cook county vs. downstate. In those ten years I have heard more than 20,000 roll calls.

A second factor which should be in the mind is that with each reapportionment and shake-up comes a few more independent legislators in each party, both from downstate and Cook county. In my opinion this is all that is to be feared.

A third factor which should be kept in mind is that the Cook county legislators, who live outside of Chicago) tends to vote like his downstate colleagues. And the great growth of Cook county is not in the city but in the suburbs.

It is true, it means that those who fear the worst out of the reapportionment of this session may be in for a pleasant surprise.
